

YEAR IN REVIEW | DEC. 27, 2021

Curbed's 10 Most-Read Great Rooms in 2021 They included stories about a storefront church, a rock-star journalist, and an East Village studio.

By Wendy Goodman

Photo: Seth Caplan, Karyn Millet, Nick Glimenakis, Andy Ryan, Annie Schlechter

Every week this year, Curbed's design editor Wendy Goodman has invited you into some of the most stylish homes in the city. Not all of them are lavishly appointed or expensively (or professionally) decorated. What they all do is express the way some of the most interesting people living among us make their homes. Here are the ten you, her readers, engaged with the most this year.

This list is measured by total collective minutes of audience engagement for each of Wendy Goodman's weekly columns. It's just a small sample of the work Curbed puts out, alongside New York's print edition and its other five digital sites — Intelligencer, the Cut, Vulture, Grub Street, and the Strategist — and a growing portfolio of newsletters. For more of all of it, be sure to sign up for Curbed's daily newsletter (along with our stellar Listings Edit, a highly curated list of the best rental deals across New York City) and to subscribe.

My Week In New York
A week-in-review newsletter from the people who make New York Magazine.

MOST VIEWED STORIES

1. Inside an Accidental Trans Enclave in East Williamsburg
2. The Tampa Realtor Who Gets Hundreds of Texts a Day
3. Finally, a Desk for Working Parents
4. 2 World Trade Center's New Design Is Pretty Good (for 2007)
5. New York Is Getting Three Giant New Soundstages

9. One Foot in New York for Two L.A. ‘Art Hoarders’

Photo: Karyn Millet

Joe Lucas and David Heikka’s cozy West Village rental. “The beauty of the apartment is that it’s sort of like an extra showroom,” says Lucas. Read the story ➤

8. A Brooklyn Storefront Church Finds New Life As a Family Home

Photo: Kiritin Beyer

Virginie Sommet’s latest project, in Ocean Hill, with a spiral staircase that she designed herself. Read the story ➤

7. A Joyful Brownstone in Bushwick

Photo: Nick Glimenakis

Attorney and influencer Cynthia Andrew and her husband teamed up with the Brownstone Boys on their first renovation. Read the story ➤

MOST VIEWED STORIES

1. Donald Trump Finally Gets a Jail Cell
2. New York City Might Have Rat COVID, But It’s Probably Fine
3. How Hard Would It Be to Hit Jeff Bezos’s Superyacht With a Rotten Egg?
4. We Unearthed 9 Actually Excellent Rentals in NYC Right Now
5. Amtrak Doesn’t Have a Plan for the $30 Billion Gateway Program